Catherine Hess : Italian Maiolica: Catalogue of the Collections. The J. Paul Getty Museum (The Getty Museum Studies on Art) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Italian Maiolica: Catalogue of the Collections. The J. Paul Getty Museum (The Getty Museum Studies on Art):

In 1984 the Getty Museum acquired a collection of Italian Renaissance majolica, or tin-glazed earthenware. This volume catalogues this collection of 45 objects spanning 400 years, including a pair of 18th-century candlesticks representing mythological scenes and a tabletop with hunting scenes.
