By Customer If you are interested in forging knives or knife making in general this is one book that should be in your workshop. It covers everything from setting up the workshop, the forging process and sheath making. The book is interesting because it focuses to some extent on making swords of the western medieval style so would also be of interest to historical reenactors. It was an expensive book in its hardcover option but beautifully produced. Now that it's available as a softback or electronically there's no excuse for you not to own it! 1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. an extremely good buy. By Velar all instructions are in depth and there is usually an interesting background provided with every section. There is information in this book I have yet to see anywhere else, including a Norse sword involving incredibly laborious efforts that I can find no information about on the internet, which is fine because it's all here. 0 of 0 people found the following review helpful. A great place to start for the beginner or reference for the experienced bladesmith. By Dr DI bought this book to shore up my techniques and to help my cousin, who is starting to learn bladesmithing with me, get a great knowledge base quickly. It is helping both of us and we are advancing both of our skills while being able to refer to it. I was warned by a very experienced bladesmith to avoid the etching technique in this edition because it is very technique sensitive and can be dangerous if not followed to the letter and all safety precautions adhered to.

Looking for instructions in bladesmithing that'll put you on the cutting edge of the custom blade market? Then this definitive guide to forging world-class blades is for you. Written by a master bladesmith, this book tells you how to set up your forge, select your materials, fashion grips and hilts, grind edges and much more!

About the Author: Jim Hrisoulas is a master bladesmith specializing in medieval broadswords and daggers and Damascus pattern welding. He has almost 30 years of experience at the forge.
